Bagels & More is a new restaurant located in the Serendipity Café at 1555 Interstate Drive. They serve breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Featured on the menu are different types of bagels, sandwiches, entrée salads, soups, pizza bagels and sides.

Bagels are made fresh daily. They serve a variety of bagels ranging from chocolate chip to cinnamon to cherry.

Bagels are eighty-nine cents each, five dollars for a half dozen and ten dollars for a baker's dozen.

Their breakfast food includes biscuit and gravy, yogurt, omelet sandwiches and a western omelet sandwich.

The menu also includes entrée salads and a variety of sandwiches. The sandwiches that are listed on the menu are the chicken salad sandwich, bistro burger, California club and the French club.

Sandwiches are served with bagel chips and a pickle. Entrée salads include: Serendipity's signature fruit salad, house salad, greek salad, Tim's plate and a club salad.

They also serve a café classic which allows you to create your own sandwich on any bagel. You can make your choice of meat, toppings, spreads and cheese.

Their sides include seasoned potato wedges and crispy onion strings.

A pizza bagel is also on the menu. It is a sun-dried tomato spread, pizza sauce, shredded mozzarella cheese and fresh basil on top of a toasted bagel.

Desserts are in the bakery case in the front. They have fresh muf-ins, cookies, cakes and pies made fresh daily.

A meal including a dessert at Bagel & More can range from four dollars to ten dollars. Sandwiches are priced from $3.99 to $4.29 to $6.29.

Bagels & More has great and friendly service along with delicious food. The wait is not long.

Orders are taken at the cash register, and the food is served to the customers and their tables. The restaurant is clean and has an appearance that is well cared for.

Bagels & More is open Monday through Friday 7:30 a.m. to 5:00

Plato lab to the rescue

Amber Dixon
Charger Staff

Plato was an ancient Greek philosopher famous for asking penetrating questions of everyone he encountered.

The Plato lab is a software tool for intervention and remediation in English, Math, Reading and Science.

The main subjects are Biology, Algebra 1, English 9, 10, 11 and 12, Foundations 1 and 2 and Life Science.

A student may use it with their class as a whole for enrichment and the lab can be used for referral.

All the programs are set up so there is an application or drill, mastery and tutorial tests for each concept taught.

Students can review concepts, practice and take tests over information.

The student has to complete eighty percent mastery of the concept to receive credit for that concept.

Students can also use the lab if they have not passed the Gateway

Exam.

Students who have moved from different states might be in this category.

They would need help preparing for the exams.

"Plato lab has helped students pass their Gateways. Last year we had twelve students receive their regular diploma who would have received a certificate of attendance if it were not for Plato lab," said Ms. Darlene Hatcher, who schedules and supervises the Plato lab.

Students can be in the lab from 7:15-7:45 am on Monday-Friday and 3:15-4:15 on Monday-Thursday.

Extra help will also be offered during the first week of Spring Break.

All Putnam County high schools are studying their options on the possibilities for using Plato lab. One of the possibilities is recovering credit for classes students have failed.

Traditional summer school will still be offered, but a full class of students will not be necessary in order to take the class.

Plato lab has already been successful in Bradley, Overton, Maury and Smith counties.
